- Discussion and reaction to discovering the damage to the Office and the Historical Society from another break in, Vermont State Police were called and arrived during the meeting for initial photographs and testimony, will return with evidence bags and blood sample kits.
- Flagpole halyard is broken and unthreaded. Steve has a machine that can lift up that high, and will bring it by when it returns to town to thread the halyard.
- Greg Eckhardt- The Old Cemetery has a lot of stones toppled and broken. The Cemetery Commission needs to hire someone to repair them. Greg has called around and found two professionals who are interested in the job.

The vegetation has overgrown two of the walls in the Old Cemetery, and either volunteers or hiring someone to cut back vines and woody plants.

The back wall of the Cemetery is fallen over and in disrepair. Greg asked Luke to take a look at it, on Monk's recommendation.

Greg and Monk have discussed the creation of a Veterans' Memorial at the back of the Cemetery near Leurich Field. Monk has a line on a large block of marble and names could be carved for each war and space left for the future.

The Memorial in the Village might be moved to Leurich Field as a more appropriate location. The spot in the village was chosen only because that was the site for collection of scrap metal for the war effort. (Note: Landgrove had the highest contribution of scrap metal per capita in the state, according to Monk.)

The Selectboard responded that some of these things (repair of stones) may be tax money appropriate, but others may be more appropriate for the Cemetery commission to fundraise via donations.

- The big windows in the main room: Black Sash Restorations is coming October 4th to assess the job of fixing them.
- John is in discussions with Phil and Dale about purchainsc a slice of land for the town sand shed. But they have gone South and those talks will resume later.
- Steve has heard back from VTrans regarding a permit to pave the apron of Landgrove Hollow Rd where it attaches to RTE 11. Mark Pickering will come conduct a site visit.
